Report From Elizabeth Stewart, On Mission in Ethiopia

June 15th, 2011

I have been in Ethiopia for 11 days so far and everything is going really well. The people in Ethiopia and everyone at the hospital are very welcoming and have made the transition easy. Addis Ababa is a great city with lots of things to do and see. I have also been out into the countryside and up in the mountains. Ethiopia is beautiful, even when it is raining, which happens a lot since it is the rainy season. So far at the hospital I have mostly just been observing and learning about how the system works and where things are. I have had the opportunity to see some very interesting cases and witness the compassion and dedication of the doctors working at the hospital. This past week I also went to a clinic at an AIDS orphanage and tomorrow I am going to a clinic for fistula patients. The opportunities that I have had so far have been amazing and I am excited for all of the things that I will learn and see in the future. Thank you so much for your continued thoughts and prayers.

FBC Heritage Series To Begin

You may be aware that 2011 marks the 150th anniversary of the beginning of the Civil War. Few communities suffered as much destruction and hardship during the war as Fredericksburg.

Fredericksburg Baptist Church, as a body of believers, and as a physical structure, likewise experienced the full brunt of war's devastation.

In the coming months the newsletter will include stories and vignettes about the church's experience during these four years of war. These stories will provide not only interesting stories of our past, but can also be a source of inspiration as we see how the church persevered through dark and difficult times.

Also, we still have copies of our church history, "Out of Our Hearts," available for purchase. The book covers the first 200 years of the church's history. This beautifully produced, coffee-table-style, book can be obtained for just $24.95 in the church office.

Standing Back and Taking It All In...

By Judy Lowman

When I was asked to write something about my experience working on Family Service Day, I thought, "why was I asked?" I am not asked very often to write about something specific. Then I started to think about it and realized that I LOVE to organize and clean out closets, pantries, etc ... Cleaning is not my favorite, but I do like to pull everything out and give "stuff" that is not getting used a good home. I like putting things in colorful containers of just about any type and making everything visible so when you open the door, whatever you are looking for is right there! After it has all been reorganized, then I like to stand back and look at it! I know that sounds crazy but hey, maybe we each have our own craziness!

When I was told that I was working with Ann Marlow to organize the preschool closet, I was overjoyed because I think Ann is a fantastically organized person.

We worked with 2 other ladies from my Bible Study class (the Inspirations) and we pulled EVERYTHING out of that closet.

There were toys in that closet that were close to my age! There were also a lot of them! We would pull out different items and Ann would tell us about projects she had used them for such as VBS or a Sunday/Wednesday night activity.

It was kind of like going through a photo album of pictures that you had not seen in a while. One of ladies would tell us about how her son was doing in school and that he played with similar toys that we had. I would tell her to take some of the items home and let her children play with them. Earlier when I talked about giving things a new home that were not being used, I did not mean throwing them away. It felt good to tell her to take these things home and let your sons enjoy them! It was kind of like Christmas for me! We would share different stories of how our children would or, in my case, used to play with certain things. We made a lot of progress in a short time, and when we were done, we stood back and looked at what we had accomplished. I know cleaning out a cluttered closet is not a "big deal" to some, but that day was a day of not just sharing time but the sharing of memories and stories.

We ended the day sitting all together around the table sharing lunch that Sarah provided for us and talked about what our different jobs had been. There were not a lot of us there in number, but I enjoyed the opportunity of getting to know people that I did not know. I think we all came together and used our individual gifts and shared them to do "busy work" for God. I know when I go back to that preschool closet this next school year I will think about the fun we had making it look nice.

It's that time of year again for SOKS CAMP at Heritage Park Apartments. For the fourth year, Fredericksburg Baptist will help to initiate 7 weeks of summer camp activities at the Heritage Park Community off of Fall Hill Avenue.

The SOKS summer theme is Inside OUT, focusing on personal integrity and character:

Join us for the Kick-Off Celebration! Everyone is invited THIS Sunday, June 26th from 4:30pm-6:30pm at Heritage Park off of Fall Hill Avenue. We'll enjoy hamburgers, hotdogs and a whole lot of fun together as anticipation grows for the start of camp.

As a church, we will host the last week of camp, August 8th-12th. Save the date!

A Warm Thank You

The Tea for the Cure was a great success and an experience that was worthwhile. As a cancer survivor, I was touched to see the support from so many. Also as a survivor, I was able to participate in the fashion show and meet some wonderful people who have been through similar experiences. The Tea raised almost $20,000 for cancer research. The best part was the fun we had sharing with friends and getting ready for the event. More than forty of our church members attended.

I want to thank all of the people who worked so hard. Vicki Silver spent many endless hours preparing for the silent auction. Several of our youth came and volunteered by serving, setting up and cleaning up. Marianna has always been so supportive, but to have her there helping was special. All of the tables were set with unique themes. Many of our church members helped prepare our four tables. Donna Brosmer's Country Western table won the decoration award. Carolyn Helfrich helped with an original center for that table of cowboy boots and flowers.

I finally want to say a big thanks to all who helped with this event. I appreciate the opportunity I had to be there and share with so many people.

-Susan Hilldrup

A Special Place

By Sarah King

The painting shows Kathy West holding a doll in a rocking chair, two things that brought her pleasure.

As I imagine many of us do, I only slightly notice with reverence the ministries in our dear church without much thought to the way they came to be and their far-reaching impact. Our staff and members reach out and serve in so many profound and meaningful ways that regretfully I become accustomed to this magnificence without pausing to reflect upon the grandeur of each ministry. One such ministry whose significant outreach represents the calling of the Holy Spirit to find community for everyone is the Special Friends Ministry. Its mission seems so poignant in a church's desire to be inclusive, and while the stories are manifold of the ways this ministry has touched lives, the story of its origin is a testament to what I have found Fredericksburg Baptist Church to stand for: hospitality.

Over 30 years ago, Margaret Ingram's invitation to church extended to her neighbors Ken and Vivian West was met with the response, "we can't come because there is no place for our daughter." Their daughter Kathy was a 12 year old child living with profound mental and physical challenges. When Margaret realized the sad truth of this statement, she worked with leaders to prepare a place for all of the West family, including Kathy.

Tommy Higgins was the director of the Sunday school programs at the time (around 33 years ago) and found a room and teachers for Kathy; sometimes the teacher was Higgins, himself. Soon the word spread that ours was a church welcoming these special friends, and over time the class has grown, including these special friends and their families. "Over the years many people have been drawn to the ministry, and it truly is God's calling," according to Marian Wiltshire. "Often many of the members say things which are much more profound than what we teach them," said Marian, who has worked with Special Friends since 1984. Many teachers have given of their time and talents to these individuals, and in doing so were further called. In recognizing the need for the Sunday School class, hearts and minds were opened to the needs for the group homes: The Mary Kelly Group Home for Women and the Howard Cates Group Home for Men are supported by our church. The growth of this ministry all began with a neighborly invitation and a desire to include a child of God in His kingdom, which we should all be trying to participate in here at Fredericksburg Baptist Church as kingdom builders.

I heard this story last Sunday in the Special Friends Sunday School room during a reception where a picture of Kathy was presented. Members of the class and committed leaders of the ministry gathered to honor the beginning of this ministry and Kathy West whose life was the impetus for opening hearts and minds, inspiring great service and providing community to the least of these. The painting was created by Anne Higgins, who has worked with the Special Friends since her husband Tommy was inspired to lead when Kathy first started coming to church. The poem on the painting was written by Kathy's mother who spoke to the group with grace and grief. Kathy died at age 37 in 2003.

Through stories and music, laughter and joy, the people in that room celebrated this ministry and its beginning with the life of Kathy West. That gathering and this ministry embody the inclusive nature of the Holy Spirit made manifest by the servants of Fredericksburg Baptist Church. I found myself thinking about how the life of a person who knew less than 100 words and lived for only 37 years and whose intellectual limitations seemed profound and pleasures were simple things like drinking tea or a rocking chair had such an impact. All this is because she was loved enough for people to provide a place for her and the words of John 14:3 rung in my ear. Jesus tells his followers, "And if I go and prepare a place for you, I will come back and take you to be with me that you also may be where I am." I was not thinking of the "second coming" or of "the place" as paradise in the next world, but rather that sacred place is right here in our church, as we create community together. The beauty in this story and of this ministry is of our calling to prepare a place here and now and for everyone.

Did Someone Say “ROADTRIP??”

By Donna Brosmer

Many make plans for Memorial Day weekend that include the beach or the mountains. How about Lansing, Michigan? This past Memorial Day weekend, my husband, Ron, and I were privileged to be part of the Burundi road trip to Lansing. We loaded up 2 commuter vans and one minivan and left the church parking lot at about 6 p.m. Friday night; 30 Burundian folks and the 2 of us. We were attending a worship revival/conference. Thanks to Donna Morris, we had lots of nice snacks to enjoy and thanks to the Burundians, we had lots of nice company. It proved a bit daunting due to some extremely stormy weather, but we managed to arrive safe and sound into Lansing at about dawn on Saturday morning. We pulled up in front of a house that already had people outside, and much to Ron's and my pleasure we got to witness the greeting of people who had not seen each other since leaving Tanzania. The sun was rising, people were shouting out greetings and flying into each other's arms. Children were being told "I have not seen you since you were a baby." Somehow this erased the memory of the 11 hours behind the wheel.

We then piled back into the vans and were led down the road to a local hotel. Someone in the community of Lansing had donated the cost for ALL of us to stay at the hotel. Everyone stayed 4 to a room but me and Ron. Word must have gotten out about my prolific snoring! We checked in, everyone changed and then we loaded back up to go over to the church to unload music equipment and get ready for the service. As the day wore on, more and more people showed up. By the conclusion of the weekend there were at least 200 Burundians, coming from all over the United States. We met people from Iowa, Missouri, Canada, and even someone from Burundi. During the worship each congregation sent up their worship team. For those of you who have watched Glee or are familiar with the term "show choir" this was show choir at its BEST, particularly since all of it was done to worship God. I can say, without being biased at all, our worship team was the best. Even Yamungu, at the age of 3, took part in the worship. Rebekah and Estherine lead the worship in beautifully clear voices and by the time all was done, everyone in the church was applauding and joining in.

We then repacked the van with all the equipment, because church on Sunday would be held at a hotel in downtown Lansing. By the time we all got back to the hotel it was 11 p.m., and the adults were exhausted. BUT, teenagers being teenagers, many of them stayed up into the wee hours of Sunday morning visiting with friends they had not seen for a long time.

Sunday church ended around 2 p.m. and we were back on the road by 3:30. Our snack supply was reinforced with some peanut butter, jelly, and bread and off we went. Other than a little side trip through the countryside, thanks to my GPS, we came back home without a hitch. We took one major break, stopping at the McDonalds at exit 91 on the PA Turnpike. The kindness of the employees there will not be forgotten. We ordered 68-$1.00 burgers and 30-$1.00 fries and they worked diligently to get the order done. We were served with lots of smiles and we left there knowing that God, as usual, is EVERYWHERE! The teens with us cleaned up the parking lot after we were done eating, leaving it in much better shape than when we arrived.

We arrived in Fredericksburg at about 3:15 a.m. Monday morning; all very tired but very grateful. There were prayers of gratitude and even some music. Mr. Abel and Jean Claude should be commended for the driving of the vans. They had no one to give them a break, unlike me and Ron giving each other breaks. Ron and I will never forget this journey and will be willing to make the next one if we are given the opportunity. Rebekah told me at one point that others at the conference were very impressed with the fact that Ron and I came along. People at the conference actually stated that Fredericksburg Baptist must love their Burundi families to care so much about them! If you are ever given the opportunity to participate in Burundi worship, please take it. The language may be different but the message is the same. God is clearly in our lives, working miracle after miracle; it is up to us to open our eyes and our hearts to see them.

Teacher of the Year...

By Susan Graham

At some point in her Vacation Bible School years, Martha Mikell must have memorized that verse. Martha, daughter of Jane and Jim Sthreshley and Al and Lois Simms, grew up in Fredericksburg Baptist Church, and she found her mission calling in public education. Martha graduated from North Stafford High School, earned her BS from William and Mary, and her masters from Old Dominion. She now teaches biology and chemistry at Stuart's Draft High School, serves on the school improvement committee, and sponsors the Students Against Drunk Driving. This spring, she was named Augusta County Teacher of the Year. Jane says Martha has a particular passion for working with challenging students. Martha's principal said "She's a star among stars." Teachers are not preachers, but they can live their faith from their classrooms. Martha loves the unlovely, and supports those who need her most, following Jesus' teaching when he said, "In the same way, let your light shine before men, that they may see your good deeds and praise your Father in heaven." Matthew 5:16

Real Treasures to be Found in the Church Library

Did you know that your Church Library has a wide variety of reference materials in addition to the regular collection? These materials provide wonderful support to Bible Study leaders and classroom teachers, as well as those who just want to know more about the Bible and are looking for spiritual reading.

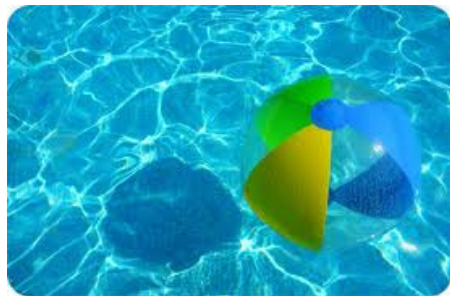

The library has a number of commentary sets that are very helpful in the study of scriptures and Biblical characters for the Old and New Testaments. Some of these sets are quite detailed, while others give a simpler overview. Bob Dungan recently donated a new set of commentaries which compliments the older sets in our collection.

In addition to the commentaries, we have many other books to help broaden and support Bible studies. There are Biblical concordances, encyclopedias, dictionaries and atlases. For example, a beautiful new book, Jerusalem's Temple Mount – from Solomon to the Golden Dome by Hershel Shanks, was recently donated in memory of Dr. Howard Gregory by the Entheos Sunday School Class.

We have a large selection of books on theological interpretation and spiritual matters, preaching, devotional readings and church history. There are also materials on missions and the Women's Missionary Union. Some material is also available in VHS, DVD, CD and audio cassette formats. The library receives two outstanding magazines, The Biblical Illustrator and The Biblical Archeology Review, both of which contain interesting articles with photographs, drawings and maps.

Stop in to see what is available.
